There is a growing concern for the use of lead in wheel weights and the impact lead weights have on the environment. Federal, state, and local governments have taken steps towards the elimination of lead weights in their jurisdictions. The use of lead in wheel weights was banned in Europe in 2003. The primary replacement material in Europe is Zinc. Several states have passed legislation banning the use of lead weights. These states include CA, WA, ME, VT, MA & IL. The US EPA has also accepted a petition to begin rule making than bans lead wheel weights at the federal level.
